FourScreen Entertainment Announces its First Artist Release

Samantha Lombardi Album is being released Oct. 12th, 2010 in anticipation of theatrical releases of the motion pictures, “The Pool Boys” and “Overnight.”

FourScreen Entertainment is proud to announce its first artist release, Samantha Lombardi, a 20-year-old Australian rocker who writes and sings her songs with a passion not usually seen in such a young artist. Sam’s natural talent and clear, powerful vocals combine the rock attitude of Avril Lavigne with the power of Pat Benatar.

Sam is no stranger to the music business, delivering her first, album at 14, which featured collaborations with Trent Reznor and Andreas Carlson. Sam wrote and sang the theme song for the Taffy Entertainment animation series, “Growing Up Creepie,” and was chosen to perform the title songs in the theatrical releases of “The Pool Boys” and “Overnight.” Her brand new songs, including the rocking “Done with You,” “Are You In,” “Rest of My Life,” the pop influenced, “Keep it All,” the punk sound of “Call it a Day,” and the dark rock ballad, “Lovely Disease,” show Sam’s amazing writing skills, clear strong voice and her storytelling gift.

FourScreen Entertainment is an innovative music company that integrates the music production company, Rafelson Media with the teen marketing agency, 12to20, to create, market and distribute music geared for today’s young consumers.
